

13th Annual GLOBAL ENERGY PARLIAMENT

WELCOME

Join us for a groundbreaking session of parliament to rediscover the illuminative power of Science and Faith! Rather than supporting the idea that one has exclusive authority over the truth, modern institutions should find a way to integrate both science and faith in helping humankind to answer its most important questions.

We will discuss how we use science and faith in our work and lives, and how they can help human society attain a more sustainable, peaceful and meaningful future.

The 13th session of the Global Energy Parliament is open. Register now to attend as a Member of Parliament!

OUR AIM

The Global Energy Parliament is the first and only global parliament, designed for human beings who feel a responsibility to improve the conditions of life on Earth. At our annual sessions of parliament, people from all nations join together and examine some of the most formidable challenges facing the world. We collaborate on innovative, viable and science-based solutions in a spirit of harmony, peace, and brotherhood. Our aim is to arrive at decisions on recommendations to the world's governments and international agencies.
