Written Submissions

Individuals or groups of Members of Parliament who are registered for GEP 2023 are welcome to give a Written Submission to the upcoming session of the Global Energy Parliament.

All Written Submissions which follow the submission guidelines below will be published.

GEP 2023 Theme

“Science and Faith”

Detail

Written Submissions outline a Member of Parliament's research on the focal theme, “Science and Faith.”

The Written Submission should include the Member of Parliament's recommendations for what the Parliament ought to adopt in terms of a resolution, recommendation or policy suggestion to governments on the focal theme.

The questions for GEP 2023 are:

- What is the role of science in the problems that your portfolio / field of work tries addresses?
- What is the role of faith in solving those problems?
- Are there common elements they share?
- How can they be used to help humanity attain its highest goals of peace, harmony, balance and sustainability?
- What do governments need to do, and what do citizens need to do?

Members of Parliament are encouraged to stay within their own area of expertise. Every area has a relevance in the Global Energy Parliament. The major areas are divided into Portfolios, namely: Administration, Agriculture, Child Welfare, Communications, Commerce & Industry, Culture, Education, Environment, Finance & Economy, Health, Housing, Human Resources, Law & Justice, Natural Resources, Science and Technology, Peace & Global Affairs, Parliamentary Affairs, Power, Social Welfare, Sports, and Youth Affairs.
